

Laura D'Elia MAJOR: History and Political Science

One of her professors writes:

Lauren is a gifted researcher and interpreter of the past. She has taken five separate courses with me, and in all has produced research papers that are extraordinary in the breadth of primary sources and the clarity and sophistication of her analysis. She is also one of the most disciplined and focused students I have ever encountered. She is a truly inspiring student.

Laura studied one semester abroad at University of Wooster in England and is a member of both History and Political Science Honor societies.

Laura has been accepted to both George Washington and Rutgers' University law schools. She has chosen George Washington where she will be attending this fall
