

Bottled Water

Andrew Hoffman

- The United States is the largest consumer in the world for bottled water
- Second most consumed drink in the United States each year
- Nestle, Aquafina and Dasani are the leading companies in sales of bottled water
- Imported to the U.S. from numerous countries around the world
- There is currently no fair trade arranged for bottled water by the United States with other countries
- The working conditions for employees producing bottled water in low income countries is poor and something that needs to help be changed in the coming years
- What anyone can do is speak out on social media against these inequalities as well as signing the online petition encouraging fair trade of bottled water
- Go to the Petitionsite.com and search Create Fair Trade for Bottled Water

