

Gasoline

- Gasoline is one of the most important commodities being produced in the modern era.
- The Gasoline trade is globalized and has both consumer and producer nations.
- However, the trade is surrounded with labor and environmental injustices. Specifically in the developing countries.
- As awareness of the environmental damages that fossil fuels increase, the more likely it will be that gasoline will soon be replaced by alternative energy.