RAMAPO COLLEGE FEATURED IN THE PRINCETON REVIEW'S "BEST IN THE NORTHEAST"

(MAHWAH) - Ramapo College of New Jersey is one of the best colleges and universities in the Northeast according to The Princeton Review. The New York City-based education services company selected the school as one of 212 institutions it recommends in its "Best in the Northeast" section on its PrincetonReview.com feature 2009 Best Colleges Region by Region. It also profiles the school in its book, "The Best Northeastern Colleges: 2009 Edition."

Ramapo College was selected by The Princeton Review based on data collected from several hundred schools in each region, visits to schools, student surveys and the opinions of independent and high school-based college advisors. Regional best colleges present a range of institutions that vary by size, selectivity, character and locale. The 630 colleges named in 2009 Best Colleges Region by Region represent about 25 percent of the nation's 2,500 four-year colleges.

The Princeton Review asks students to rate their own schools on several issues – from the accessibility of their professors to quality of campus food – and answer questions about themselves, their fellow students and campus life.

Ramapo College of New Jersey is a comprehensive institution of higher education dedicated to the promotion of teaching and learning within a strong liberal arts based curriculum, thus earning the designation by the New Jersey State Legislature as “New Jersey’s Liberal Arts College.” Its curricular emphasis is international, which includes the liberal arts and sciences, social sciences, fine and performing arts and professional programs within a residential and sustainable living and learning environment.
