"Women Of Influence," a Lecture and Networking Event,
Will be Held at Ramapo College June 15

(MAHWAH, NJ) - "Women of Influence in New Jersey," an informative lecture honoring the state's female leaders in business, government, academia and the arts, will be sponsored by Ramapo College of New Jersey and the Commerce and Industry Association of New Jersey (CIANJ) on Tuesday, June 15 at 5 p.m. This networking event will be held in The Trustees Pavilion, located on the Ramapo College Campus.

The program will feature presentations by Dr. Padma Allen, president and CFO of TechnoDyne and TechnoDyne University; Debra Taeschler, founder and CEO of Grafica; Susan P. Ascher, president and CEO of The Ascher Group; and Cathy Callagee, vice president of Information Services at UPS. Sally Glick of Sobel & Co., LLC will moderate.

The cost of the lecture is $10 for CIANJ members and $20 for non-members. Ramapo College students and affiliates will be admitted free. Online registration will be accepted at www.cianj.org, or can be faxed to 201.368.3438.

Ramapo College of New Jersey, with approximately 5,700 students, is the designated liberal arts college of New Jersey. The Commerce and Industry Association of New Jersey (CIANJ) is the leader in free enterprise advocacy to provide an economic climate that enhances business potential in the state.

Members of the media interested in covering the lecture can contact Anna Farneski, assistant vice president for Marketing and Communications, 201.684.6844.
