

School of Humanities and Global Studies (HGS)

Welcome from Dean Hangen

Welcome to Ramapo College of New Jersey, Roadrunners! I am Dr. Susan Hangen and I joined Ramapo in 2002 as a Professor of Anthropology and International Studies. Our curriculum is designed to enhance students' skills in critical reading and writing, effective communication, problem solving, and leadership. It is also designed to significantly improve students' global and cross-cultural understanding and give them the intellectual and practical foundation to become successful in their careers and further studies. I am thrilled to have you as a student in the School of Humanities and Global Studies. Please feel free to email me at shangen@ramapo.edu or stop by B-224D to say hello!

Alumni Spotlight

"I thoroughly enjoyed my experience as a history major, and I feel that it truly prepared me and set me up for a successful career. The history major offers a wide variety of classes, and they are all taught by passionate professors who have enormous amounts of knowledge on the subjects they teach. Additionally, I appreciated how the professors truly cared about my development as a student. They not only helped my growth in the classroom, but they provided many opportunities for research and internships out of the classroom as well. As a history major, there truly are so many options for career paths, and the work we did in class truly prepared us for those careers. Although I am currently teaching, I know that I have many options and opportunities because of my history degree."
